

Information about Authors

Milos Balaban (1962)

The chief of the Security Policy Department of the Center for Social and Economic Strategies at the Faculty of Social Science of Charles University. Specialized in security policy of the CR, international relations, and prognosis of the security situation development in Europe and in the world.

The graduate of Military Academy in Brno (1985). In 2000 he finished postgraduate follow-up study at the Institute of International Studies of the Faculty of Social Sciences of Charles University with specialization in the issue of the Russian Army and Russian Society.

He regularly publishes in a wide range of periodicals, is a member of the advisory boards of the journals Army Prospects and the Science for Population Protection, he is also a member of several work groups and professional commissions.

Jiri Halaska (1956)

Assistant Professor at the Faculty of Biochemical Engineering of the Czech Technical University in Prague. He specializes in population protection, critical infrastructure, and crisis management and economics.

A Graduate of Military Ground Forces Academy in Vyskov (1979); Ph.D in Economics and Management (University of Defence, Brno 2007).

He published in area of crisis management and state security policy. An Academic Senate member of the Biochemical Engineering Faculty of the Czech Technical University in Prague.

Zdenek Hon (1981)

The Deputy Head of the Department of Medicine and Humanities of the Faculty of Biomedical Engineering of the Czech Technical University in Prague. In his professional activities he deals with crisis management, toxicological aspects of chemical accidents and the potential misuse of hazardous substances.

He graduated from the University of South Bohemia in Ceske Budejovice, the Faculty of Social Health in the field of Crisis Radiobiology and Toxicology (2007). Currently studying a PhD study at the Faculty of Special Engineering University of Zilina in Zilina in the program of crisis management (civil security field of study).

A co-investigator of 5 grant projects and a principal investigator of the project focused on the issue of terrorism. He regularly publishes in scientific journals at home and abroad, and also actively participates in international conferences. Further he is the member of the Society for Radiobiology and Crisis Planning of the Czech Medical Society of Jan Evangelista Purkynje, and the member of the Academic Senate of the Czech Technical University in Prague.

Barbora Liskova (1988)

An undergraduate of Technical University of Ostrava, Faculty of Safety Engineering. She is engaged in technical safety of persons, property and population protection. She is a lecturer at the University of the Third Age of Technical University of Ostrava and University of Volunteer Firefighters in the frame of the Association of Firefighters of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia.

Jiri Markuci (1988)

He is an undergraduate of the Faculty of Safety Engineering of Technical University of Ostrava, subject field Incident Planning and Crisis Management. He is focused on the issue of population protection, risk analysis and crisis management. He is a lecturer at the University of the Third Age of Technical University of Ostrava, Faculty of Safety Engineering and University of Volunteer Firefighters in the frame of the Association of Firefighters of Bohemia, Moravia and Silesia.

Antonin Rasek (1935)

Works in the Centre of Security Policy, Centre for Social and Economic Strategies (CESES), Faculty of Social Sciences, Charles University in Prague.

PhDr. Antonin Rasek graduated from Philosophical Faculty of Charles University in Prague (1961, Doctoral degree 1969). In the years 1950 ó 1968 duty in the Armed Forces (e.g. commander´s positions in military units, military journalist, leading positions in public associations within Armed Forces). After 1968 dismissal from the Armed Forces (rejection of occupation of the Czechoslovakia by Soviet Army). In the years 1969 ó 1989 he worked in different research institutions. Political rehabilitation after November´s revolution in 1989. In the years 1990-1992, he worked as Deputy Minister of Defence, 1992 ó 1993 as Director of Institute of Strategic Studies. Since 1993 independent security expert, independent columnist, research worker (Centre for Social and Economic Strategies - CESES). Founder of Center of Security Policy CESES (2004).

Co-author of CESES scientific studies šTraveling in the Czech Futureö, and šStrategic audit of the Czech Republicö; and a special paper šSystem of Comprehensive Security Management in the Czech Republicö and author hundreds articles in šVojenske rozhledyö (Military Review), Trend, Sondy (Probes), daily paper (Pravo, Mlada Fronta).and studies about security policy. Laureate of Janda´s security Prize 2005 (awarded by National Security Council of the Czech Republic).

Jana Robinson (1977)

At present she is on the position of an analyst at the European Space Policy Institute (ESPI). Till 2009 she worked as a director for the development in Prague Security Studies Institute (PSSI).

She is a graduate from Palacky University in a subject field of Asian studies (2002) and master´s degree studies (MA) at George Washington University in Washington DC in a subject field of Security in Asian-Pacific region and Space Policy (2009). She is an external inceptor at Charles University in Politics. She graduated from the Space Studies Program 2009 (SSP09) at International Space University (ISU) and studied for one year at Shangai University (1999-2000).

She published a number of articles on space security and sustainability of space activities in a number of journals (e.g. Space Policy). She is an editor of the section on national space security policy and international organizations in the publication Handbook on Space Security, Springer publishing.

Vladimir Silhan (1950)

An office worker of the Ministry of Defense of the CR focused on the area of development activities, analyses and concepts of education and research. He has long-term home and foreign experience in the field of defensive policy and military strategy.

He is a graduate from Military Academy in Brno (1974) where he also in 1986 concluded with external science post-graduation. In 1995-1996 he studied at Cranfield University in Great Britain where he acquired MSc degree.

He worked in several various NATO work teams, at present focused on education. Occasionally he publishes and gives lectures on various topics from the defense and security field.

Martina Slikova (1975)

She is a lecturer at the department of medical and humanity subjects of the Faculty of Biomedical Engineering of the Czech Technical University in Prague, a guarantor of professional practice.

She is a graduate from the 3rd Medical Faculty of Charles University in Prague (Bc. 2001, subject field - Medical Science), Faculty of Humanity Studies of Charles University in Prague (Mgr. 2005, subject field - Management and Supervision in Social and Medical Organizations).

She is also a co-worker in the project of Education of Patients at HDS Kladno and a co-author of operational standards ibid.

Josef Riha, (1934)

He is an Em. Professor at the Czech Technical University in Prague.

Studies: Czech Technical University Faculty of Civil Engineering Prague, Czechoslovakia, period 1952/7. Diploma Thesis - Master of Science, period 1961/5. Sc.C. Thesis - Doctor of Philosophy, period 1980. International Course I.A.C. Wageningen, the Netherlands, period 1969. International Course on Environmental Assessment and Management C.E.M.P. University of Aberdeen, Scotland, period 1991. Key Qualification: Multicriterial Axiomatic Multiattribute Utility Theory; Environmental impact Assessment; Hydrology and Water Management. The deep personal interest regards of the environmental screening, environmental audits, environmental reviews of projects and environmental impact analysis, i.e., of the multicriterial ecological assessment with connection of the decision-making process.

The presented research projects are solving different problems of the multicriterial axiomatic multi-attribute utility theory, economic instruments for environmental management and sustainable development, impact and risk assessment methodologies (EIA/SEA), the decision-making tool kit, etc.

Tomas Simek (1956)

A research worker of the Ministry of Interior ó General Directorate of FRS of the CR, Population Protection Institute, in the warning and laboratory department. He is devoted to research work in the area of warning and emergency notification of population and in the area of the integrated system of warning and notification. He participates in the assessment and testing of warning endpoints of the integrated system of warning and notification and is a lecturer in specialized courses.

In 1981 he graduated from Military Technical University of Liptovsky Milulas, subject field of Communication Technology.

In his professional career he published a number of studies, assessments, guidebooks and teaching materials.